Cogges APCM

A Small Cog in a Big Picture

cog

A wheel or bar with a series of projections on its edge that transfers motion by engaging with projections on another wheel or bar.

A black and white photograph showing a close-up of a hand placing a small cog into a larger gear mechanism. The background is blurred, focusing attention on the mechanical interaction.

We are to be a cog – resourcing and supporting individuals and the wider Church, as we do we will receive energy.

The Domesday Book records that by 1086 Cogges had a water mill,, presumably on the River Windrush. For much of its history Cogges had two water mills: one at the southern tip of the Parish and the other north of the Priory.

As we are open to the Spirit of God he will power the wheel.
